The protective tariff policy of the United States benefits solely the trusts whose wares are protected at the expense of home consumers. The supposition that they will pay laborers more than the current price of labor because of "protection" is all bosh. They "secure their laborers at the lowest figure possible and put the "protection" in their pockets. This is what has created the trusts.
They are the result of a blind partisan prejudice which has made men vote against their own interests.—Linneus Bulletin.

After a pleasant visit with relatives, Mrs. Lucy Flannigan returned to her home, Ponca City, I. T., Tuesday. She was accompanied by her brother, the great and only Thomas J. Yates.

Carl Jaeger and wife attended the Carnival and visited relatives in Macon last week.

Monroe City, Mo., Fair.

Bad weather caused one day's postponement in the opening of the Monroe City, Mo., fair and on two of its days the atmosphere was cold and disagreeable—yet their exhibition which closed September 19 showed a financial balance on the right side. The display of live stock and farm products was quite creditable and the attendance, considering the weather, was good.

Honors in the Hereford class were divided between J. M.
Proctor & Son, J. O. Wood &
Son and F. T. Wadsworth.
Wilson Bros. were winners in the Shorthorn ring. Proctor & Son carried off first and second on fat steer or heifer, also Hereford bull one year and Hereford bull six months. Byron McFarland won on boar under one year, his exhibit being from the herd of McFarland Bros., of Sedalia. One of this boar's litter mates won first at the State Fair last August.

Hopkins Glasscock swept the field on long wool sheep. On medium wools on buck under one year first went to James Williamson. Also first on ewe under one year. Ewe one year and over J. M. Proctor, first and second.

There was the usual display in floral hall of agricultural products, fancy work and good things to eat.

Probably the most unique exhibit of the fair was entered by Donald Veal, of Monroe county.
He had 103 separate and distinct agricultural products, all raised on 120 acres of Monroe county land. Included among these were teosent, a South American forage plant, pencil lara and rice, two plants not credited to Missouri as a rule.
This exhibit is given special mention because it so well illustrates the possibilities of Missouri's soil and climate.

The display included many varieties of fruit, vegetables and cereals. The only criticism that could be made of the fair would be on the failure of the management to make adequate provision for public comfort.—Ruralist.
